Showers Put Out Fires.

COBALT, Ont., Oct. 2. — Showers which fell Sunday morning dampened, if they have not entirely quenched, a series of bush fires burning in the camp for the past week. Reports from other parts of the district indicate there were many small fires, but there has been no serious damage as yet. September, while above the average in temperature, was very dry, and little rain had fallen for some time until Sunday.

TOWN COUNCIL [illegible]TING

Council [illegible]ember, [illegible]ust, 1922

Council met in re[illegible] session on Monday evening, [illegible]ar M. P. Graham presiding.

Reeve Paul, and [illegible]councillors Wilson, Boyes, Perr[illegible]ong and Steacy occupied seats [illegible]ound the Board.

A communication w[illegible]read from the Standard Paving [illegible] in reply to a letter from the [illegible]poration in reference to the p[illegible]ment on Dundas street. A re[illegible]sentative of that company had [illegible]ted Napanee and examined the [illegible]vement as being all right, and [illegible]e one of the blocks was a little [illegible]ter than the others, yet, in his [illegible]pinion, it was all right.

Ordered filed.

A communication [illegible]as read from the Provincial [illegible] Controller in reference to the [illegible]rationing and fixing of the price [illegible]f American anthracite coal [illegible]ince. The council m[illegible] by passing a resolution, app[illegible]g a local fuel controller. Also [illegible]son to represent [illegible]Ontario Fuel Controller [illegible]fix the price to be charged [illegible]same.

Moved by Reeve [illegible]conded by Coun. Meng, [illegible]t the fuel controller in Ontario [illegible]e asked to fix the price of Amer[illegible]n anthracite coal [illegible]ed.

When the Fuel C[illegible]roller receives a request as [illegible]bove resolution, he will request [illegible]cil to appoint a re[illegible]sentative, and together with re[illegible]sentatives from the different [illegible] dealers, appear before him [illegible]n when the whole question will be gone into and a proper price fixed.

Mr. U. M. Wilson addressed the council on behalf of Mr. Chas. Reedyeo, in reference to a cement walk which the owner intends to construct on Union street in front of his property. The building of the walk had been planned but for some reason the work had not been completed.

The Misses Harrison, whose property also abuts on Union street, addressed the council in opposition to the building of the above mentioned walk, and presented a signed petition against it.

Considerable of the council's time was taken up in hearing arguments pro and con, and the decision of the council was left over until under the order of business of motions.

[illegible] Addressed the council [illegible] the question of a well on the property of Mr. Geo. Greer, which he claimed had become contaminated from seepage from the town's main trunk line sewer.

This matter also received considerable discussion, and it was finally decided to refer the question to the Streets Committee for an immediate investigation.

On motion the county rate was ordered paid.

The tax collector reported to the council that he had collected to date the amount of $63,000 of this year's taxes. The total available taxes this year is about $90,000.

A by-law to amend Schedule "B" of the Public Health Act, was introduced and read, and the council went into committee of the whole on the second reading of the by-law, when the committee reported progress, and begged leave to sit again. Several minor details have to be worked out before the by-law can be finally passed.

Moved by Coun. Perry, seconded by Reeve Paul, that the walk on the east side of Union street be constructed as planned in the by-law.

Moved in amendment by Coun. Boyes, seconded by Coun. Wilson, that the cement walk be not constructed on Union street opposite the property of Mr. Lewis Harrison.

Amendment lost.

The matter of re-imbursing Mrs. Ella Thompson for serious injuries received in consequence of a nasty fall on a defective sidewalk on Thomas street in the early spring, was referred to the Finance Committee for investigation.

On motion the council appointed Chief of Police Barrett local fuel controller for the town of Napanee.

On motion the chairman of the Finance Committee was appointed the council's representative to meet the Provincial Fuel Controller in the fixing of coal prices for the town of Napanee.

The collector of taxes was paid $200 on his salary as collector.

SENTENCED TO PENITENTIARY FOR LIFE FOR SHOOTING OF NIGHT CONSTABLE R. A. BEARD

Charged with the murder of Night Constable Richard A. Beard, at Napanee, early in the morning of August 28th, 1921, Frederick Bryant, aged 22, a resident of Kingston, was placed on trial before Hon. Mr. Justice Orde, and a jury, at the sesions court, Kingston, on Wednesday morning of last week.

On February 21st Bryant pleaded not guilty to the charge of murder.

Although it is now over a year since the killing of the Napanee Constable, which at the time stirred the entire countryside, the interest in the case has not abated, and this was quite evident from the large crowd that assembled for the hearing of the case. As early as seven o'clock people were at the court house to make sure they would secure a seat, and they did not appear to mind the long wait for the opening of the case at nine o'clock, nearly every seat in the court room had been taken, and at nine-thirty the court room was filled.

SWEARING OF THE JURY

The Bryant case was called as soon as the clerk of the court, J. W. Bradshaw, had called the members of the petit jury, and had them answer to their names. It was found that four jurymen were absent without leave. Two of the absentees are farmers, and the other two, residents of Kingston. Justice Orde imposed a fine of $15 on each of the Kingston men, and imposed a fine of $10 on the farmers.

The prisoner, Bryant, was placed in the prisoner's box shortly before the calling of the jury. He was attired in a green suit and was well groomed. He appeared to be quite nervous, but took a keen interest in the choosing of the men to be selected to decide his fate.

In the selection of the jury, the crown challenged one man, and counsel for the prisoner challenged four. The jury sworn in was composed of the following:

Thomas Hyland, Pittsburgh; G. R. Howes, Hinchinbrooke; Chas. Graves, Pittsburgh; Russell Elsworth, Kingston; Henry Angrove, Kingston; William Arnel, Kingston; J. F. Card, Clarendon; James E. Miller, Palmerston; Edward Sibbitt, Pittsburgh; Albert Franklin, Pittsburgh; Arthur Keyes, Kingston; Frank Caldwell, Kingston.

F. F. Miller, Napanee, a provincial land surveyor, was the first witness called by the crown. He produced to the court a plan of the immediate neighborhood in which the murder was alleged to have occurred, and the plan and were received as exhibit A. in the case.

Vincent Reva, who has a store next to Smith's jewellery store, was the first witness, and told of finding the men in the lane and informing Constable Beard of the fact.

Hugh Duncan also repeated the evidence as given by him at the coroner's inquest. The saw three men in the alleyway; also heard the shot fired, and was one of those who found the body of Mr. Beard.

Mr. Benjamin Laffman recalled having heard Bova notify Constable Beard that the men were in the alleyway, and saw three men go east on Dundas street. Took them to be of medium height, and slightly built. Witness was the first one to enter the lane after the shooting, and found Mr. Beard lying on the pavement. Chief of Police Barrett of the shooting.

Other witnesses gave evidence as to the finding of the body and other details.

Erwood Upton was placed in the witness box and repeated his confession which he made shortly after the shooting. He stated that Bryant carried the rifle, and had it at the time the shot was fired. He also described the actions of the party in leaving the scene of the shooting, and relating to Mr. J. W. Robinson's car with which they got back to Kingston.

Sherwood Upton was called and corroborated the evidence given by Erwood Upton, and stated that Bryant had the rifle and stumbled as the gun went off.

Chief Barrett gave evidence as to the finding of Mr. Beard's body and the steps taken to apprehend the guilty parties. He also was present when a test was made to see if the rifle could be discharged accidently, but the rifle did not go off.

The principal Constable Ward, W. F. Young, Murvale, and Police Sgt. Armstrong, Kingston, also gave evidence.

W. S. Herrington, K.C., addressed the jury, summing up the evidence given, and Mr. Rigney eloquently appealed on behalf of the prisoner.

ADDRESS OF THE JUDGE

Justice Orde, in addressing the jury, stated that both sides of the case had been conducted admirably. The crown prosecutor had the proper knowledge of the duty of the court, and counsel for the defence had placed his case in a fair manner. Two excellent addresses had been delivered. The charge was a serious one. The crime of killing any human being was described in the criminal code as homicide, divided into culpable, and non-culpable, that is where one is to blame or is not blameworthy, such as killing one in a battle or in self defence. Culpable homicide included mur-

SELBY MAN MET INSTANT DEATH

About two o'clock Friday morning Mr. Morgan, a former resident of Selby, was struck by a train while crossing the track near Kingsford station and almost instantly killed when his skull was fractured, his limbs broken and bad bruises sustained. A young man who was with him at the time was able to escape by hastily jumping when they noticed the train coming. The late Mr. Morgan and his companion were crossing the track to tie up a team of horses which Mr. Morgan had left standing while transacting some business on the other side of the track, and it is clear that in approaching the track neither of the men saw the train till it was almost on them. Mr. Morgan, some time ago had purchased the Woods' store in Selby, and was trying to dispose of it again in order to join his son-inlaw, who lives in Buffalo.

The law held that one engaged in any unlawful purpose was guilty whether he fired the shot or not.

While it is my duty to say something to you about the law," added his lordship, "you twelve men are the sole judges of the facts."

Reviewing the case his lordship stated that the late constable had drawn his revolver on going into the laneway and he had a right to do so. There was evidence that there were three men in the laneway. Three men were seen running out of the laneway after the shooting. The constable did a courageous act; one the Canadian constabulary was famous for. The officer went into the laneway to perform his duty, and in the course of a few seconds met death, killed by a bullet piercing his heart, and lodging in a window sill. There was the outstanding fact that he was killed by a bullet from a rifle. The bullet was fired by some person. One of the three men fired this shot. What did the evidence say? The only direct evidence was given by the two Upton boys, who swore Bryant was present, and they also admit that the three were engaged in an unlawful enterprise.

They had gone in the laneway for the purpose of robbing Smith's jewellery store. Bryant had been associated with the Uptons in an unlawful shooting. If the jury believed the evidence of the Uptons then Bryant had a rifle. If the three men were engaged in an unlawful enterprise then all were guilty. Counsel for the prisoner had laid great stress on the shooting being accidental. One has only to be shown that the shot had struck the man in a vital spot. While the evidence of Bryant was to the effect that the shooting was accidental, there was no more evidence to show it was accidental than there was to show that it was deliberate. There was direct evidence to show that the rifle was discharged accidentally. This was merely a matter of opinion—the statement of Erwood Upton who said, "what in hell did you do that for."

His lordship stated that the jury would be entitled to find the accused guilty of manslaughter. It was natural for the jury to sympathize with the accused, but they must realize that they are the guardians of the law, and must protect the community at large from just such crimes. His lordship remarked that the verdict must be a unanimous one.

The case was given over to the jury at 9.55 p.m., and at midnight the verdict was returned.

THE SENTENCES

Frederick Bryant, on charge of manslaughter, imprisonment for life in the Portsmouth Provincial Chief Penitentiary; on charge of breaking into garage of J. W. Robinson, at Napanee, and stealing an auto, fourteen years in penitentiary; on charge of attempting to break into F. W. Smith & Bros. jewellery store, at Napanee, seven years in penitentiary; on charge of receiving stolen goods, fourteen years in penitentiary, sentences to run concurrently.

Erwood Upton, on charge of manslaughter, life imprisonment in penitentiary; for breaking into garage of J. W. Robinson, at Napanee, and stealing auto, fourteen years in penitentiary; on charge of attempting to break into the jewellery store of F. W. Smith & Bros. at Napanee, seven years in penitentiary, sentences to run concurrently.

Sherwood Upton, on charge of manslaughter, life imprisonment in penitentiary; for breaking in to garage of J. W. Robinson, at Napanee, and stealing an auto, fourteen years in penitentiary; on charge of attempting to break into F. W. Smith & Bros. jewellery store at Napanee, seven years in penitentiary; sentences to run concurrently.

The above sentences were imposed by Hon. Mr. Justice Orde, at the sittings of the supreme court on Thursday morning of last week. The court room was filled with spectators when his lordship pronounced the sentences shortly before 11 o'clock.

PARLIAMENTARY LETTER

War clouds, which formed the end of last week, gave every indication of blowing over, have again darkened the world horizon with the continued advance of the Turks into the neutral zone in the Near East, and the Angora Government's receipt of the Allied peace note. As a result the Cabinet here, after a brief respite from night and day meetings, is again prepared for emergency calls and for any necessary action. Whether the situation will be such as to require precipitate action on the part of the Canadian Government remains to be seen, but the Prime Minister and his colleagues are being kept very closely informed of developments, both through press messages and by confidential cables, and are holding themselves ready for whatever may be needed.

Members of the Cabinet are either remaining in Ottawa or within close call, so that should the situation demand instant action by the executive they will be available at any moment they are called by the Prime Minister, Rt. Hon. Mr. King also is keeping a close watch on developments and has been in constant contact with his offices so that no delay could ensue were any steps necessary.

The result has been a readiness for any situation which might require attention or consideration by the government. One thing has been made abundantly clear and that is, that while Canada in no way shirks her duties and her full responsibilities as a member of the British Commonwealth in the present crisis, she does retain the right of thinking and acting only when given the information needed upon which to base such actions.

* * * * *

As might have been expected, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen has sought to capitalize the war situation and indulge in some typical Tory flag-waving. At Toronto he told an audience what he would have done as Prime Minister, but overlooked telling his audience, (judging from the press reports of his speech) just what form the message would pass between London and Ottawa in such circumstances.

The messages received here were confidential, and as such, could not be given out without consent of the British Government which was the sender, and which refused that consent. A summary of them, however, was given to the press and the people. This showed that no request had been made for Canada to send troops, but rather this government had simply been asked how it would regard an invitation to be represented by a contingent of troops in a force to be sent to the Near East. Canada had replied, through her Prime Minister, that further information in the matter would be appreciated, and that the government stood ready to summon Parliament, (which must decide upon the actual sending of troops), should the subsequent information warrant such a step being taken.

There was no lack of support in the reply, nor even a suggestion that Canada would hesitate for a moment were there any menace to the Empire, or any part of it; simply a request for information and assurance that the government would act upon whatever information came to it, and in the event of a situation which appeared to require such action, would place the whole matter in the hands of the people's representatives in Parliament and carry out their wishes.

In this Mr. Meighen professed to see a serious coolness of Canada's affection for the Empire, though he had told the conference of Prime Ministers, little over a year ago, that Canada must retain the right of thinking independently and translating her thoughts into action as she considered best.

* * * * *

That the majority of Parliament, which in effect, is the majority of the people, favored the attitude taken by the Prime Minister and his Government, was made plentifully evident by the statement issued by Hon. T. A. Crerar, leader of the Progressives, second largest group in the House and in the country. Mr. Crerar was called to Ottawa for a conference with the Prime Minister. At the close, the Progressive Leader issued a statement saying that the information placed before him since coming to Ottawa, in addition to the press despatches which he had read, had not served to alter his opinion, which was that before taking any action in the matter of sending troops to the Near East, the government should summon Parliament and place the whole situation before the people's representatives for their decision. Mr. Crerar's statement coming from the leader of the second largest group, and supporting the Government's attitude, carried with it apparently approval of his party, so that some 185 of the 235 members of parliament, representing a vast majority of the people, were in support of the Prime Minister's policy, while only fifty members supported Mr. Meighen in his criticisms, which criticisms were to have been expected.

The Conservative Leader appeared also to have over-reached himself regarding the Treaty of Sevres, signed between the Turks and the Allies a year ago. Canada, Mr. Meighen declared, was a party to that treaty, and as such, bound by it in certain things. The Prime Minister, Rt. Hon. Mr. Mackenzie King, pointed out, however, that the treaty in question had never become effective because it had never been ratified by the Powers signing it. Canada had passed some legislation based upon it to provide for a settlement of debts owed by the Turkish Nationals to Canadian firms and individuals. This, however, had been simply enabling legislation, giving to the Governor in Council power to do certain things under the treaty when it became effective. As the Treaty had never been ratified and made effective, however, this enabling legislation, passed to provide for the collection of debts, also had never become effective.

The legislation in question was an Act which Parliament passed, as a debt-collecting measure, practically without discussion and certainly without a question or a remark about ratification coming from the Conservative leader until six months after its passage. The country, however, had been given the explanation of the Prime Minister, and evidently had learned to accept Mr. Meighen's protests and outcries as things to be taken with salt, since in so many ways he has shown that an opposition can forget its real purposes and become wholly destructive without offering anything constructive in criticism.

TREASURER'S SALE OF LANDS FOR TAXES

COUNTY OF LENNOX AND ADDINGTON

County of Lennox and Addington,
To Wit :

By virtue of a warrant under the hand of the Warden and seal of the County of Lennox and Addington, bearing date the Tenth Day of July, A.D., 1922, and to me directed, commanding me to levy upon the lands mentioned in the following list for arrears of taxes due thereon, and the costs as therein set forth.

I HEREBY GIVE NOTICE that unless the said arrears and costs are sooner paid, I shall proceed to sell the said lands, or so much thereof as may be necessary for the aforesaid taxes and costs, at the Court House, in the Town of Napanee, on WEDNESDAY, the 25th Day of OCTOBER, A.D., 1922, beginning at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon, and in compliance with the Assessment Act.

Should any of the aforementioned lands remain unsold they will be again offered at an adjourned sale to be held on Wednesday, the 22nd day of November, for any price they will bring. The municipalities directly concerned give notice of their intention to purchase, if taxes are not fully covered, or for any sum they may deem advisable.

The public will please remember that this is a strictly CASH sale. Private cheques will not be accepted unless MARKED by the bank upon which they are drawn and must be at par here.

Non-patented, or any lands in which the Crown has an interest will be sold subject to those provisions.

W. J. SHANNON,
Treasurer of the County of Lennox and Adington.

Dated at Napanee this 10th day of July, 1922.

The DURANT Car

"Just a real Good Car"

30,000 Durants in Less than One Year.

The success of Durant Motors is reflected in the plants provided in the first year to take care of the demand for Durant Fours and Sixes. Six of these plants are complete and newly equipped.

The working floor area is 4,000,000 square feet.

Employment is afforded 20,000 people, and the production capacity for Durant built cars is more than 1,000 a day.

Eventually it will be a DURANT. Why Not Now ?

Queer Freaks of Lightning

The public has many illusions about lightning, its incidence and effects. The way lightning acts is in reality much different from what the average person imagines. For instance, there are superstitions against keeping in the hand anything of steel, even a penknife. You are told to keep away from windows or doors through which there is a draft. The iron in the wire of a screen door is believed to attract lightning. The vicinity of the cook stove is forbidden, because it, being iron, would have a tendency to draw lightning. All these are idle fancies, generally speaking. There are a few chances of being hit, but very few, and these few chances consist in being in close contact with an isolated building or street that offers the closest electrical connection with the lightning.

It is said that of all the vivid lightning flashes in summer storms, only one per cent. strike the earth. The others are confined to the sky—to making contact with other clouds. The chance of being hit by a falling brick or being bitten by a dog are greater than being hit by lightning. In the United States, about 500 persons a year are struck by lightning, or about one in every two hundred thousand. The ratio of suicides, accidental deaths, railway fatalities, and drownings, deaths from heat, and other sources of mortality, is much larger—from four to twenty times as much. When lightning does strike the earth, it takes the shortest path. Penknives, screen doors or drafts do not have any effect on the course of the bolt. There is, of course, only one really safe place, and that is a cellar or dugout deep in the bowels of Mother Earth. Being a ready conductor, the earth immediately scatters lightning or any other electrical current, and no one in it would suffer any electrical shock.

The next safest place is in a building with steel frames. The great skyscrapers, for instance, that are built on steel framework, are among the safest of buildings, even though they tower into the sky far over any other buildings, and offer the finest target for a bolt of lightning. If lightning does strike, as might happen, it immediately takes to the steel frame, and courses down to death without damage. As long as a quick, safe contact to earth is provided, there is no danger to persons in or near the building. If these buildings were struck, the people inside would never know it, even though outsiders might see the contact. The Eiffel Tower in Paris has been hit many times, but has never been damaged because it is steel. When lightning takes the shortest course, a house on a hill is much more in danger of being hit than one in a hollow. A low house in a valley is immune. Wood, stone, brick and stucco houses are all equally liable to be struck, and, if struck, to be damaged, because the materials in them are poor conductors. When lightning strikes a poor conductor, it heats the elements and shatters it. Then a fire starts if the material is inflammable. The bark may be ripped off a tree by the sudden expansion of air cells, or the clothing or shoes ripped off a person in the path of a bolt. Any upright object is a better target than the air surrounding it. A house, barn, tree or other projection from the earth's surface is a better conductor than so much empty space. All buildings with tall chimneys, steeples, or high roofs are most susceptible, unless they have steel frames.

The places of real danger are under a solitary tree in the middle of a field. Beneath a hanging lamp with metal chains to the ceiling is dangerous. To stand between two metal objects, such as a stove and kitchen radiator, is also dangerous, because lightning will jump more readily from one to the other than go through conductors of greater resistance. On the average, however, one part of a home is about as safe as another. There is no particular use in lying between the folds of a feather bed, hiding in a closet or slinking into a dark corner. The only safe place is in the cellar. Small, isolated pieces of iron are not attractors of lightning. Some golfers might throw away their steel sticks, but when they do that they show ignorance of the way lightning acts. What the current of a bolt wants is an easy, short path to the earth, and it will not deviate to touch an insulated or isolated piece of iron metal that does not offer a good contact with the ground.

Canada's Canteen Money.

The Canadian Government has intimated to the High Commissioner in London that it is willing to accept Canada's share of the Expeditionary Force Canteen Funds, as determined, provided it is in accordance with the agreement reached for the division of the profits. The High Commissioner's office is satisfied that the division is in accordance with the agreement, and Canada's total share will, therefore, be about $2,500,000, of which, $2,000,000 has already been paid.

An Amusing Sight.

A rather amusing sight was that at York Beach one rainy day recently, when a party of bathers all ready for the morning dip came from their cottages on their way to the beach, all carrying open umbrellas. Vacationists witnessing the procession of bathers approaching the water all set for the plunge wondered as to the theory of carrying "bumbleshoots" to protect themselves from the rain when they would shortly be drenched while taking their morning bath.

Woodlands and pasture lands are each more profitable when managed separately. Keep the stock out of the home forest.

A Strange Story.

A story which, as he says, "well, but somewhat extremely," illustrates the position in Germany and other parts of Europe where coinage is depreciating, is told by Gordon B. Johnson, Canadian Trade Commissioner at Glasgow, in a report to the Department of Trade and Commerce. "A Russian in the nail business," Mr. Johnson tells the tale, "went to Germany with, say 18,000,000 of roubles. Germany, having a high-grade exchange as compared with Russia, he only received sufficient marks for all his millions of roubles, to buy one wagon load of nails. He took the wagon load of nails to Russia and sold them for 30,000,000 roubles, a profit of 20 per cent. When he returned to Germany with his 30,000,000 roubles he found that the Russian exchange had depreciated and he could only get enough marks to buy half a wagon of nails. He took the half wagon to Russia and sold it for 35,000,000 roubles, and, well satisfied with his profit, returned to Germany, where this time, owing to a further depreciation of the Russian exchange, his 35,000,000 roubles bought only enough marks to pay for four cases of nails. He returned to Russia and sold the four cases for 40,000,000 roubles, but when he came back to Germany, the Russian exchange had again fallen, and he only got enough marks to buy one nail, so he hammered it into the wall, tied a rope to it, and hanged himself."

Famous Electric Plants.

The world-wide renown of Niagara Falls has lent peculiar distinction to the great electric plants installed there, but in so far as the Niagara plants are long distance ones, the work being done there has been surpassed in several instances, both in the distance covered and in the amount of power transmitted. Many of the greatest electric plants are among the Rocky Mountains and on the Pacific coast. At Fresno, in California, a reservoir on the brow of a nearby mountain supplies the heaviest head of water used for such a purpose, 1,400 feet, and the power is distributed over a distance of thirty-five miles. In some of the western installations the water, after serving its purpose in generating electric power, is utilized for irrigating land.

Gave Life for Sailors.

A thrilling story of heroism at sea was unfolded in Montreal when the master of the steamer Corinaldo brought his ship into port recently and reported the loss of his second officer, Angus J. Glasgow. The officer was washed into the sea during a gale that struck the ship on August 4. Although unable to swim, he refused help, and ordered the saucering boat to rescue two of the Corinaldo's sailors who were also thrown into the sea. Both the sailors were saved, while the second officer was drowned in full sight of the ship.

Treasure Seekers.

After twenty years as a pilot, the Mersey, Capt. J. Irlam Jones, a retired pilot of the Allan Line, has come with his wife to Canada to claim a fortune which he believes lies awaiting him in the soil of Northern Ontario. The property in question is in the neighborhood of New Liskeard, and consists of 350 acres, which Capt. Jones believes is richly seamed with silver, nickel and cobalt, only waiting to be tapped. It has been owned by Capt. Jones for the past twenty-five years, but it was only two months ago that he accidentally learned that it is believed in the north country to be a veritable storehouse of rich mineral. The old pilot and his wife, who, having been living in Belleville, in County Donegal, Ireland, for the past six years, packed up their household effects and sailed for Montreal on the White Star-Dominion liner Canada. They brought with them several specimens of ore sent them twenty-five years ago by one John Orr, Mrs. Jones' brother, who died in the north country many years ago, after willing his land to his sister and brother-in-law.

Mountain Sheep.

Twelve mountain sheep were recently presented to the United States Bureau of Biological Survey by the Canadian National Parks Branch, to be liberated on the Montana National Bison Range. The sheep were secured from the Rocky Mountain Park, and arrived at their destination in excellent condition. Their future will be watched with a great deal of interest by big-game enthusiasts.

TRAVEL BY AIRPLANE

LESS INTEREST WAS TAKEN IN FLYING IN 1921.

Aviation Under the Dominion Air Board Has Not Displayed a Great Amount of Progress, and Less Money Will Be Spent by the Government on That Special Work.

During the war period everyone fully expected that Canada would organize and maintain a large military and civil air force and equipment after the war. Our great spaces lend themselves to aerial exploits. The need of communication over great distances now not covered by railway or telegraph, and not likely to be so covered for decades, has been patent. The aerial corps was expected to supply the need. The co-operation of the Dominion Air Board, operating under the Department of Militia, and the provinces, in organizing regular mail routes in the Northwest was looked for. In some isolated cases work of this type has been done, but aviation under the Air Board has not by any means reached the vigor and distribution that the circumstances suggested.

The Dominion estimates for 1922-23 for Air Board purposes were cut by about $600,000, to $1,600,000. But as buildings, machines, etc., are on hand, the operations are not greatly curtailed. The number of young pilots to be trained has been reduced, and university cadet training this season is postponed. The chief effect of the reduction in the estimates is the inability to get new machines of modern type. The season's program of the Air Board includes training at Camp Borden; flying operations from Vancouver and High River; in the Lake Winnipeg district from a main base at Victoria Beach, and subsidiary bases at Le Pas and Norway House; and at Ottawa. Operations on a repayment basis for the Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia Governments are expected. The first will be a practical test on a large scale of airplane forest protection. This is to be carried out from Whitney, with a sub-base at Parry Sound. The Ontario Government is deeply interested, and is giving thorough co-operation to make a test of the practical efficiency of airplane patrols of forests. For the Quebec Government, a station at Roberval is established, and used as a base for fire-ranging by airplane. The Vancouver station is also used for fire ranging, and the work in this case is of special difficulty.

The Air Board has had in hand special tests relating to airplane efficiency in Canada. Our cold weather in particular has special effects on airplane engines, wires and canvas. Prof. Robb, at Edmonton, has been studying the operation of airplane engines at low temperatures, and has considerably reduced the time for getting a cold engine started. Mr. Hughes, of the University of Toronto, has carried out experiments on the strength of streamline wires and other aircraft parts under low temperatures. Mr. Gliddon, of McGill, has carried out investigations of wind channels, including tests on tapered airfoils and different shapes of wing tips. Prof. McKergow, of McGill, has carried out tests on anti-freeze mixtures suitable for engine cooling. Prof. Bornson, of Halifax, has worked on the action of air speed indicators at low temperatures, and shown that a steel diaphragm indicator is more reliable than the present standard pattern. The board has had airplane fabric exposed to cold weather in northwestern places, including Dawson in the Yukon, and has sent samples to the Royal Aircraft establishment in England for comparison with the standard samples of fabric. If airplanes are to be used continuously in Canadian winters, a special type of airplane canvas may have to be used, or else protecting varnish or other material will be specially required. Nearly all the aeronautical research work has been in relation to the effect of exceptionally low temperature on parts of the machines. Aviators who ascend to 25,000 feet find about the same atmospheric temperatures that we have in winter, but the air there is a dry cold, whereas the bane of airplane operation in the middle of our Canadian winters is the frequency of driving dampness combined with cold.

The average Canadian may be inclined to believe that airplane development is at a standstill in Canada. The once familiar hum of the great man-made birds is seldom heard. The number of private air pilot licenses in force at the end of 1921 was 52; of commercial air pilots, 61; of air engineers, 178; of air navigators, 1. There were 52 civil aviation machines registered, 33 civil Government machines and 62 Canadian Air Board (military) machines. The number of civil aviation harbors licensed was 24; of civil Government harbors, 6; and Canadian Air Force harbors, 1. This shows continued life for the sport that once promised to be a great public favorite. The Air Board report says that the number of flights in 1920 was 18,671; the mileage, 427,000, and time flown, 2,655 hours, and in 1921 the numbers dropped to 10,386 flights, 294,000 miles, and 4,247 hours. The number of passengers decreased from 15,265 to 9,153. Freight or express carried increased from 6,740 pounds to 77,560. The decline was undoubtedly caused by the refusal of the public to pay fancy prices for a few minutes in the air. The cost of operating the machines is too high, and money is not plentiful for what is so often a losing venture. But there is an undoubted commercial future for airplanes in the north. Last winter flights were made by machines fitted with skiis between Cochrane and Moose Factory, and the time was two and a half hours, compared with eleven days by dog train or canoe.

To Holders of Five Year 5½ per cent Canada's Victory Bonds

Issued in 1917 and Maturing 1st December, 1922.

CONVERSION PROPOSALS

THE MINISTER OF FINANCE offers to holders of these bonds who desire to continue their investment in Dominion of Canada securities the privilege of exchanging the maturing bonds for new bonds bearing 5½ per cent interest, payable half yearly, of either of the following classes:—

(a) Five year bonds, dated 1st November, 1922, to mature 1st November, 1927.

(b) Ten year bonds, dated 1st November, 1922, to mature 1st November, 1932.

While the maturing bonds will carry interest to 1st December, 1922, the new bonds will commence to earn interest from 1st November, 1922, GIVING A BONUS OF A FULL MONTH'S INTEREST TO THOSE AVAILING THEMSELVES OF THE CONVERSION PRIVILEGE.

This offer is made to holders of the maturing bonds and is not open to other investors. The bonds to be issued under this proposal will be substantially of the same character as those which are maturing, except that the exemption from taxation does not apply to the new issue.

Holders of the maturing bonds who wish to avail themselves of this conversion privilege should take their bonds AS EARLY AS POSSIBLE, BUT NOT LATER THAN SEPTEMBER 30th, to any Branch of any Chartered Bank in Canada and receive in exchange an official receipt for the bonds surrendered, containing an undertaking to deliver the corresponding bonds of the new issue.

Holders of maturing fully registered bonds, interest payable by cheque from Ottawa, will receive their December 1 interest cheque as usual. Holders of coupon bonds will detach and retain the last unmatured coupon before surrendering the bond itself for conversion purposes.

The surrendered bonds will be forwarded by banks to the Minister of Finance at Ottawa, where they will be exchanged for bonds of the new issue, in fully registered, or coupon registered or coupon bearer form carrying interest payable 1st May and 1st November of each year of the duration of the loan, the first interest payment accruing and payable 1st May, 1923. Bonds of the new issue will be sent to the banks for delivery immediately after the receipt of the surrendered bonds.

The bonds of the maturing issue which are not converted under this proposal will be paid off in cash on the 1st December, 1922.

W. S. FIELDING,
Minister of Finance.

A Fine Fish.

Every once in a while we hear of a big fish being caught in Hay Bay. The fame of this old bay as the home of big fish has spread to all parts of the continent. Fishermen come from far and near to try their luck. This time the lucky man is Duncan Struthers, New York city. Mr. Struthers was stopping with James Ribely, an old Hay Bay homestead on Hay Bay, and while fishing on September 26th, he hooked and landed a maskinonge weighing 45 pounds. The fish was 53 inches long and measured 25 inches around the body, and is one of the finest specimens we have ever seen. M. B. Mills, who is recognized as an expert at mounting game of all kinds, mounted the fish, and Mr. Struthers intends taking the fish home with him when he returns to New York.

The Town Assessment.

Town Assessor, Mr. Geo. A. Cliff, has returned his Assessment Roll to the town clerk. The report shows the population of the town to be 2966. Number of children, 5 to 7 years, 139; number 8 to 14 years, 330; number 15 to 20 years, 293. Legislative franchise voters, 840; number of dogs, 95. The three oldest persons in the town are Mrs. Thomas Smith, mother of Mr. John Wilson, in her 101st year, Mr. John Fennell, sr., in his 90th year, and Mrs. Jane Vance in her 94th year. All three are hale and hearty, the two old ladies especially so. This is Mr. Cliff's thirteenth report as Assessor, and though no doubt many persons would like to have their assessments lowered, Mr. Cliff seems to give general satisfaction and assesses the town on a fairly equal basis.

For Your Vacation.

Hundreds of people will spend in Canada their vacation in the hunting season. They are now getting their equipment ready for the chase. The question "Where to go" is the all absorbing one. A region easily accessible that insures real sport and game in plenty is the objective. Let the Canadian National Railways introduce to you the "New World," that vast area in Northern Ontario and Quebec traversed by the Transcontinental Line between Winnipeg and Quebec City. It is virgin country for the hunter, and moose particularly are plentiful. Apply to any agent of the Canadian National-Grand Trunk Railways, or write C. K. Howard, General Tourist Agent, Toronto, for illustrated booklet, "Where to Hunt, Fish and Paddle in the New North," it gives complete information.

SHOT ON CITY STREET

Young Scotchman Was Murdered in Windsor.

He Was on His Way Home With a Friend When Killed by an Italian, Who Also Wounded the Other Man—Suspected Slayer Has Been Placed Under Arrest.

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 2.—The body of William Fraser, a young Scotsman, who had only been in this country for eight months, lies in a private morgue here with a bullet through his heart. Frank Bianchi, 58, an Italian, living at 408 Mercer street, is in a cell at police headquarters. He will be formally arraigned in the Police Court, charged with the murder. Jack Lorimer, a countryman of Fraser, who was with him at the time, is in Hotel Dieu, a bullet wound in his neck.

With Lorimer and two other young men, Fraser was on his way home at 1.30 o'clock Sunday morning, when on Wyandotte street, between Brant and Assumption streets, they came across several Italians who were engaged in an altercation. A little later three shots were heard and Fraser fell dead, his heart had been pierced with a bullet from a 42-calibre revolver. Lorimer stumbled on a few steps when he too went down, blood spurting from a bullet wound in the back of his neck.

The sound of the shots attracted Police Sergt. Jones. A hurried call to headquarters brought a motor load of officers, but before their arrival, Lyle Wogan, a young Windsor man, who had been requested by Sergt. Jones to assist him, had corralled a man in a dark alley. This man when ordered to halt refused to do so, but a shot from the revolver of Wogan brought him to his knees, a bullet in his right foot. A round-up of the Italian quarter was at once commenced and ten Italians were brought in for questioning.

The man captured by Wogan in the alley gave his name as Frank Bianchi, a revolver found near where he had been hiding was identified by Luigi Brondisio, one of the Italians, as the property of Bianchi. When the latter heard himself accused of the murder he fell in a dead faint. The bullet which the doctors found in their autopsy on Fraser's body is said by the police to fit the gun found on Bianchi.

Fraser was employed by the Oakland Motor Company at Pontiac. He came to Windsor Saturday to see a football game and was staying at the home of Lorimer on Bruce avenue. He is said to have a wife and parents living in Glasgow.

Autopsy performed showed that the bullet passed entirely through Fraser's body, entering behind the shoulder blade and coming out beneath the right arm. Death was instantaneous.

SHOT HIS SON-IN-LAW.

Mysterious Crime Committed by Respected Galt Citizen.

GALT, Ont., Oct. 2.—An attempted murder and suicide occurred here on Saturday afternoon at 21 Queen street east, when John Martz, aged about 63, a well-known and respected resident, shot his son-in-law, Ernie Lamarble, in the head, and then put a bullet in his own forehead. Martz is in the hospital in a semi-conscious condition, with a slight chance for his recovery, while Lamarble is out and around. The bullet, which flattened itself on the inner plate of the skull, has been removed.

Martz, a resident of Galt for many years, has been in poor health for the past year, and it is believed that brooding over his sickness deranged his mind and caused him to commit the rash act. No reason can be advanced for his attempt to take his son-in-law's life.

According to the police, the two men were out in the garden, Martz watching Lamarble take down a tent that the former had been sleeping in this summer. Lamarble was taking down the last board of the flooring when Martz offered his services, and the son-in-law, bent down at his assistance, had the

TURKS BACK DOWN

Kemal Ordered Troops to Cease Their Activities.

Armies of National Leader Have Been Withdrawn from Chanak Area and Optimism Prevails In London as Result of Peaceful Turn In Events In the Near East—Conference Arranged at Mudania.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 2.— Orders for a cessation of military movements in the Chanak region of Asiatic Turkey and for the suspension of the activities of the Turkish Irregular forces in Tarsace have been issued by Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the Turkish Nationalist leader.

The Turkish Nationalist authorities have agreed to an armistice conference in Mudania, on Tuesday and have requested the Allied High Commissioners to appoint delegates. The Nationalists will be represented by Ismet Pasha and possibly by Hamid Bey.

Kemal was requested by Gen. Harrington, the British commander, to arrange for a new line between the British and Turkish forces around Chanak, in the neutral zone. As a result the Kemalists have evacuated Eren Keui, and the British now control the whole coast of the Narrows from Chanak to Kara Bournou. The latter point possesses an excellent key, enabling warships to anchor in deep water.

M. Franklin Bouillon, who has been conferring with Mustapha Kemal Pasha, is expected to arrive in Constantinople shortly and to inform the Allied High Commissioners fully of the Turkish views on the situation.

Danger Point Past.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—The general feeling in Paris is that the danger point in the Near East situation is past. The withdrawal of the Turks from Eren Keui, and, as semi-officially reported, also from their positions at Chanak, is accepted as proof of the Angora Government's readiness to comply with the Allies' desires.

It is explained here that there will be two conferences at Mudania, the first between Gen. Harrington and Mustapha Kemal, or his representative, alone. This is to settle the question regarding the neutral zone on the Asia Minor side of the Straits. The second will be quite a distinct conference and will draw up a provisional statute for Thrace the Allied and Turkish generals being present.

Great Britain is given credit in French official quarters with having held a dignified and firm attitude, which has greatly contributed to the solution of the difficulty. At the same time, Mustapha Kemal is praised for having shown a conciliatory attitude, which it is hoped, the British will not overlook, as the Kemalists will have evacuated the neutral zone first. French officials are anxious that Great Britain will find a means to satisfy Turkish public opinion.

A peace conference, if all goes well at Mudania, should be held about October 15, according to the belief prevalent in Turkish quarters.

Still Playing Game.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—With the virtual acceptance by Kemal Pasha of a conference at Mudania Tuesday, or as soon as possible thereafter, the whole Near East situation is considered temporarily easier. However, that the Turkish troops are still concentrating in the Ismid zone, would indicate, according to remarks made after the Premier's Cabinet's second meeting, that "Kemal is still playing a game."

While the members of the Cabinet appear to be much gratified at the happy conclusion for the moment of a difficulty which might have necessitated the use of force in the Chanak zone, there are other hitches to cross. Up to the present, there is no information from Gen. Harrington, the British commander at Constantinople, that Kemal will attend the Mudania conference, although Gen. Harrington's despatches indicate that he might.

The Mudania meeting will be a purely military affair, to arrange that the neutral zone shall be respected, and also to agree upon lines behind which the Greeks are to withdraw in Thrace, both points pending the general peace conference. There will be present military representatives of the three allied powers, as well as of Greece and Turkey.

Time Not Welcome.

ATHENS, Oct. 2.—According to the Venizelos organ "Typos," the determination of ex-King Constantine to make Italy his domicile was formed after he was told categorically that it was not desirable for him to take refuge on British soil. It was suggested that he go to Denmark, from which country the Greek dynasty sprang. Switzerland also was mentioned, but the newspaper says that Switzerland, which afforded him asylum before, did not want him there again.

The decision of the revolutionary committee to ask Prince Paul to remain in Greece with the new king was created wonderment in the capital, but the Typos' correspondent has been informed the decision was due to the belief of the committee that the new Queen is not expected to give birth to an heir; hence arose the idea of keeping Paul as heir presumptive to the throne.

Cow Upsets Auto.

MOUNT FOREST, Ont., Oct. 2.—Four Mount Forest men, E. Morrison, Percy Steele, J. Murdock and Mr. Keeling, the former driving, were motoring to Hanover, when, four miles north of Durham on the Hanover road, the driver turned out to avoid hitting a horse and some cows. One of the cows walked in front of the car and was killed, but the motor was upset. Steele has a bone broke in his back and will not be about for months, the doctors say. Morrison has a dislocated shoulder and a bruised knee; Keelin has two black eyes, and Murdock received a bad shaking up.

Agrees to Work for Greece.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—Venizelos is expected to meet Lord Curzon at the Foreign Office to-morrow, Venizelos representative of the Manchester Guardian. While declining to make any political statement on the ground that he has not yet made up his mind as to the course he would pursue, he said that he had received a request from the Greek Revolutionary Government to conduct the affairs of Greece abroad.

MUST CRUSH REBELS.

Intensive Warfare Will Secure Peace In Ireland.

DUBLIN, Oct. 2.—Peace by intensive war is the only prospect remaining in Ireland. Suggestions of a truce have brought no response from irregular military or political leaders, largely because relations between both are strained.

Captured correspondence shows de Valera's leadership practically repudiated by the military section of the irregulars, while de Valera himself announces what amounts to his retirement.

Irregular armed forces now are entrusted with the sole responsibility for anti-treaty activities, de Valera, and his political colleagues having abdicated their leadership with the general promise of support for the militarists.

The hope of constitutional opposition has been abandoned. The armed irregulars refuse to subscribe to the only possible terms, namely, surrender all arms and recognition of the Government erected by the treaty.

In these circumstances the Government has decided to take drastic measures to crush the irregulars and establish stable conditions. The power granted to the National army, entitling it to hold military courts, pass death sentences for offences against the Government forces and to deport irregulars to the prison island, constitute a substantial part of the new penal measures.

The Government Ministers hold that any claim made of support in the country for irregular politics was clearly shown by de Valera in a letter addressed to the irregular chief of staff, Liam Lynch, in which he railed at the suppression of himself and other politicians who have public responsibility "without voice or authority. In any case," he added, "we will be definitely turned down by the electors within a few months' time."

This confession of weakness and hopelessness is politically accepted by the Government as depriving the armed sections of all sanction, especially in view of the fact that the election at which de Valera professes failure will be an adult suffrage one, and in spite of the young women irregulars, his most consistent supporters, voting.

PICKPOCKETS AT FAIR.

Consternation Caused by Gang Working In Milton.

MILTON, Ont., Oct. 2.—Intent on the races at Milton Fair on Saturday afternoon, the crowd was suddenly startled by a farmer roaring out at the top of his voice: "I've been robbed by pickpockets."

For a moment everyone clapped his hands to his pockets, and a dozen voices called out: "I've been robbed, too."

Five men and two women made a rush for the gates. Two were captured by Chief Chapman, Milton, Chief Smith, Burlington, and Special Constable Fleming, Milton. They gave their names as George Thompson, Brantford, and George Millar, Hamilton. About $700, police officials say, was found on them, hidden in clothes and booths.

During the search Thompson said he was thirsty and asked for a drink. Then he made a wild bolt for liberty, with police and spectators in hot pursuit. They caught him between the fence and raspberry bushes in F. L. White's garden, Robert street. A further search revealed more money on him, police officials said.

In the evening Matthew Brush, Toronto, saw a man snatch a woman's purse at the C. P. R. station. Brush chased him for 500 yards before he caught him, but the man drew a revolver and threatened to shoot. He made his escape.

Two more persons were arrested in Hamilton with several hundred dollars in their possession, local police officials were told to-day. They will be brought to Milton. Nine persons have reported losses to Crown Attorney Dick and it is believed that, in all, several thousands of dollars were stolen.

Milton citizens expressed indignation that no provincial police were on duty at the fair.

Found Hanging In Stable.

LINDSAY, Ont., Oct. 2.—The lifeless body of Bert Letts, Fair avenue, was found Sunday morning hanging by a strap at the rear of the house. Letts left a note saying that no one was to blame but himself, as he feared he might cause harm to others. For some time past he had been in the hospital at Whitby, but returned home for the Lindsay fair last week. He is survived by a wife and one daughter.

President's Uncle Killed.

DUBLIN, Oct. 2.—Patrick Cosgrave, uncle of William Cosgrave, President of Dail Eireann, was shot and killed on Saturday in a hotel here by four armed men who raided the place.

The intruders ordered everybody to throw up his hands. Mr. Cosgrave refused to comply and grappled with one of the men, who shot him.

Another man was shot and seriously injured Saturday night while chatting with friends in the street. His assailants escaped.

Robbed Hespeler Stores.

GALT, Ont., Oct. 2.—Robbers visited Hespeler in the early hours of Saturday morning and got away with about $1,000 worth of merchandise from the store of A. Long & Co. and W. Rutledge, men's furnishers. They left no clue but are believed to have traveled in an automobile and made their way towards Hamilton, as some shirts and ties were found along a detour off the Hamilton Highway. In both cases entrance was gained by removing the glass in the front doors of the stores. The booty included suits, overcoats, raincoats, shirts, socks, ties, shoes, etc., and all of certain sizes. In Lang & Co.'s store they broke the glass in the door and are believed to have worked fast there, as the safe with the door unlocked and which contained a considerable sum of money, was untouched. The robberies were not discovered until six o'clock. W. Rutledge was the heaviest loser, $600 worth of goods being taken from his store, while August Lang of Lang & Co., placed his loss at between $300 and $400.

FACTS ABOUT NIAGARA.

Hydro-Electric Development May Add to Beauty of Falls.

Pretty soon the Americans will be called upon to consider an international agreement with Canada for augmenting the usefulness of Niagara Falls as a source of power. Objection has been offered to the plan of hydro-electric development on the ground that it would mar the scenic effect of the falls—the proposition being to take out of the river twice as much water as is now diverted therefrom for power protection. This notion, however, is declared to be a mistake. Engineers say that the thing could be done in such a way as actually to improve and render more impressive our greatest natural wonder.

The crest of the Canadian, or Horseshoe, Fall is about 2,600 feet across; that of the American fall is 1,000 feet. Sixteen times as much water passes over the Horseshoe Fall as over the American fall. The middle part of the Horseshoe crest is deep in a curve, and more than four-fifths of the flow plunges over the cliff behind a thick cloud of mist. That portion is seldom more than partly visible, and then only when a favorable wind blows the spray to one side. Thus much more than half of the water of the cataract adds nothing at all to its grandeur, unless by increasing the volume of sound, while it actually injures the scenic effect by the mist it creates.

The general effect of the falls would be much improved if more of the water passed over the cliff on the American side. In other words, it would be an advantage if the flow were equalized to some extent. This, say the engineers, could be brought about by the simple expedient of dumping large quantities of rock into the river above the falls to form a lower submerged dam between the upper end of Goat Island and the Canadian shore. The dam, or weir, thus created would raise the level of the water above the falls and spread it away from the middle toward the sides, enhancing the scenic beauty of the cataract.

In less than eight miles the river falls 314 feet. At the American fall it drops 168 feet sheer. The water, as it passes over the Horseshoe, is eight feet deep. Both the Horseshoe and the American cliff are vertical precipices. The river runs twenty-three miles an hour, and under average conditions has a flow of 210,000 cubic feet per second. Its total potential energy is 7,500,000 theoretical horsepower.

At the present time 390,000 horsepower has been developed on the American side, or thereabouts, and 370,000 horsepower on the Canadian side. The total quantity of water taken out for the production of power is 56,000 cubic feet per second.

The hydro-electric development at Niagara has already added to the welfare and prosperity of this country. There is plenty of demand for the additional power, which would be furnished by a total diversion of 80,000 cubic feet per second around the falls and 40,000 cubic feet per second around the Whirlpool and Lower Rapids.

One advantage of taking away the excess water would be a consequent lessening of the rate at which the cataract eats its way backward. It operates as a gigantic grinder, the Horseshoe Fall wearing away the cliff over which it drops so rapidly that within a century it has reached something like 300 feet. It is, in fact, the river that has created by erosion the Niagara Gorge.

The water that passes over the fall represent the drainage of an area half as big as France. The water surface alone within that area is 95,205 square miles, with a shore line exceeding 8,300 miles in length.

An interesting fact well worth considering is that the hydro-electric developments as they exist to-day present a spectacle of beauty, grandeur and sublimity almost rivaling that of the falls themselves.

OLD MURDER RECALLED.

Landmark to Be Preserved In Niagara Peninsula.

There is some gratification in the Niagara Peninsula at the fact that "Milford Lodge," a celebrated house on the frontier, south of Chippawa, is to be preserved for its historical associations. The property has been purchased by F. H. Leslie of Niagara Falls, and is to be restored and preserved in its original form, with decaying woodwork replaced.

"Milford Lodge" was originally owned by Edgeworth Ussher, and the killing of that sturdy loyalist at his own door forms a tragic incident in the history of the rebellion of 1837-38. The Ussher family was one of distinction in Ireland and in the early history of Upper Canada, and one of its modern representatives, Col. J. F. H. Ussher of the Mississauga Horse, served in the great war and was a prisoner in Germany for months.

Edgeworth Ussher was born in 1804 and after his marriage lived at "Milford Lodge," facing the Niagara river road and upon the actual field of the Battle of Chippawa. It was in the fall of 1837 that the political troubles of the day came to a head, and, apart from the incidents north of Toronto, the operations at Navy Island in the Niagara river, opposite the Ussher home, formed one of the most stirring episodes. Everyone has read of how the Mackenzie sympathizers were brought to defeat by the action of Capt. Drew in cutting loose their ship, the Caroline, which left them without means of communication. Samuel Lount, while endeavoring to escape across Lake Erie in an open boat, was blown back to the Grand river, captured and sent to Chippawa, recognized, then sent to Toronto, and, with Matthews, executed.

At two o'clock in the morning of November 16, as recalled by Ernest Green in the Niagara Falls Review, Henry Taylor, who also lived on the River road, was dragged from his house by two men and compelled to guide his captors to the Ussher home, and to shout and summon the captain of the 3rd Lincoln Militia to the door.

"The Ushers awakened. Someone was calling Capt. Ussher to come out," Mr. Green writes.

"'Don't go, Edgeworth,' pleaded Mrs. Ussher; 'you don't know what it may be.'

"'Nonsense, Sally,' replied the captain, 'it's neighbor Taylor's voice. He needs me.'

"Ussher took a candle and approached the front door, his wife lurking in the hall behind him with her tiny daughter in her arms. Ussher demanded what was wanted and received evasive replies. There was not sufficient light for him to see outside the door. Some few words were exchanged; then two shots were fired through the side windows of the porch and Edgeworth Ussher fell, dying, on his own doorstep. The assassins had loaded their weapons with buckshot, and careful aim at their victim's heart at that short range left no chance of failure. A few words to the frantic woman who strove to raise his shattered and bleeding body from the floor—then the loyal soldier answered the last roll call."

TOLD BY NAMES.

Reflections of History Are Found In Geography.

Let us hope that if Tin Can Portage remains as the name of an important local point between Cochrane and James Bay, it will not be taken as the measure of our originality in discovering twentieth century place-names. It is all very well in its way, and probably commemorates some portage where innumerable trappers and lumbermen tarried for meals or sleep, and left behind them piles of containers of their factory-made food. Even at that, it is a poor substitute for such a title as Carrying Place, applied to such a neck of land as the head of the Bay of Quinte.

We are badly off for works of reference on place-names in Canada, though the work of the Geographic Board from time to time is helpful, and there are some good provincial or local compilations, such as "Nothing But Names," by H. F. Gardiner, covering the counties and townships of Ontario. A world of romance and instruction lingers behind these names, and when we consider the Indian words of the West and the Maritime Provinces there is untold music.

Early names tell a wonderful story of pioneer settlement, and in commemorating names in countries from which the first settlers came, or men or places prominent in world affairs at the time, or of some local celebrity, such as a prospector or a surveyor.

Take the group of words in or near the west side of Halton county. The county took its name from Major William Halton, who was Secretary to Sir Francis Gore, Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada from 1806 to 1811. Trafalgar township was named for the Battle of Trafalgar (1805), and Nelson township, adjoining, recalls the famous admiral himself. Bronte, a village nearby, was taken from a part of Nelson's title, while Palermo, another village, doubtless derived its name from the city of the same name in Italy, where Nelson sojourned for a time in his Mediterranean operations. Wellington Square, the early name of Burlington, and where Joseph Brant died, links up further the period of the great war through the name of the British general who overthrew Napoleon.

One goes into Simcoe county to find the townships of Flos., Tiny and Tay, named after Lady Sarah Maitland's dogs, while in Dufferin, still a great stronghold of Orangeism, Luther and Melancthon recall famous names of the Reformation. Bruce has a host of names taken bodily from Scotland, while in the newer parts of the province there are townships named after numerous public men and public officials of recent times. British Columbia, besides its beautiful Indian words, has many curiosities. Stapleton Island, in Prince Rupert Harbor, is named after the manager of the cannery. Starr Creek, in the Yukon, is named after a prospector. A survey of Quebec reveals a wealth of interest and beauty, as was recently pointed out in a series of letters by Col. William Wood in the Montreal Gazette.

CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine is even more essential for Baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

What is CASTORIA?

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. IF DICKENS LIVED TO-DAY.

How Would His Democracy Fit With Modern Life.

"Charles Dickens was the supreme democrat of the nineteenth century, if democracy implies a belief in fraternity and equality as well as in liberty," says Mr. Sydney Dark in "John o' London's Weekly."

"Dickens certainly valued personal liberty. If he were alive to-day he would probably join with Mr. Chesterton and Mr. Belloc in denouncing bureaucratic interference with the actions of the common man. He would oppose prohibition, and would have no greater love than Mr. Chesterton has for the gilderess of prying inspectors who nowadays complicate the life of most streets. Dickens, of course, belonged to the age of splendid isolation, and I fancy that if he were alive to-day he would regard all foreign alliances with a certain suspicion, and that he would not be immensely attracted by the League of Nations.

"It is interesting to speculate as to his attitude towards the Irish question. Great wars and wholesale killings were unknown to the men of his lucky generation, and it is perfectly certain that his overmastering humanism would have antagonized him to any policy that meant the continuation of strife and death, and that he would be heart and soul with Mr. Lloyd George in the endeavor to make peace between the English and Irish people.

"'Let us be happy' is the first injunction of the Dickens gospel. Then there followed the constant demonstration that there can be no happiness for the cruel, the selfish, and the inconsiderate. Ralph Nickleby is rich and miserable, Uriah Heep, however his plots may succeed, is never happy. Mrs. Pipchin is a miserable old woman, as is Sir Tulkinghorn. On the other hand, Tom Pinch and Mrs. Nickleby, Betsy Trotwood, and Mr. Pickwick, Joe Gargery, and old Varden—simple, kindly, unselfish souls, all of them—are as happy as the day is long. The Dickens gospel can indeed be summarized in the late Prof. Clifford's fine injunction, 'Let's join hands and help one another, for to-day we are here together.'

"It is, therefore, certain that if Dickens were alive to-day he would use the great weapon of his laughter against present-day abuses and present-day cruelty, as he used it in his own day against Poor-law bullies, Yorkshire schoolmasters, the law's iniquitous delays, and the vicious system of imprisonment for debt. He would jeer at Podsnappery in high places. He would gibbet pomposity and humbug. He would exalt the simple and the kind. And, when our minds at Christmas-time of the turmoil and the bewilderment in which our lives are cast, it almost seems as if our greatest misfortune is that Charles Dickens is not alive to cleanse the world with his deep, wholesome Cockney laughter."

FOR MEN WITH HORSES

DEVICES FOR MAINTAINING BALANCE OF THE ANIMALS.

Much Depends on the Bitting, But More Depends Upon the "Hands" of the Driver—Here Are a Few Hints About Bits, Nosebands and Martingales.

"Take that gimerack thing away and bring me a plain snaffle," said the celebrated Sam Chifney, a jockey who flourished in those brave days when horses could carry weight and go a distance. Many fine horsemen beside Chifney have been fond of a plain snaffle. Charles Davis, late huntsman to the Royal Buckhounds and one of the finest horsemen in Europe of his day, rode every horse but Hermit in a plain snaffle, and hunting-grooms who rarely weigh much more than a hundred pounds exercise their horses every day in plain snaffles, although their employers, often heavyweights, complain that they cannot hold them in. Scamdole, Hard-and-sharps, and many of the most "gimerack" atrocities to be found in saddlers' shops.

A plain snaffle should be just large enough to fit the horse's mouth without pinching him, smooth, and at least as thick as a man's finger. Most of the snaffles I have seen in this country are much too thin, and a snaffle that is no thicker than fence wire can be just as much an instrument of torture as the most powerful curb bit.

Horses that pull in snaffles are often accused of being hard-mouthed; but after careful observation of hundreds of horses, I long ago concluded that the hard puller does it by shifting the pressure of the bit from the sensitive bars to some part where it has little effect. I never yet knew a horse to pull, either in saddle or harness, when his head was carried in the right place unless the rider carried his hands far too high. If a horse pokes his nose heavenwards or drops his head and pokes his nose out, the pressure of the bit is then on the horse's back teeth and the driver may pull till doomsday without the slightest effect.

To prevent the horse getting his head up, the standing martingale, either attached to the noseband or the rings of the bit, is to be preferred to the running martingale. Personally, I prefer the standing martingale attached to the bit, because it acts automatically and the pressure is released immediately the horse lowers his head. The horse soon learns that so long as his head is carried too high the pain is there all the time, but relief comes the instant the head is lowered. Capt. Hayes, the greatest all round horsemaster the world has ever seen, tells us that Mr. John Hubert Moore, the greatest "maker" of steeple-chasers in Ireland in his day, frequently rode that good chaser Scots Grey in the standing martingale attached to the bit and was unable to keep him straight without it.

It is unnecessary to describe to Canadians the most common device for preventing the horse from carrying his head too low. The bearing-rein or check is too often used in this country when the horse would be better without it. Used intelligently, it is often a boon to drivers, but one often sees poor horses, both on the land and on the road, struggling pitifully through not being able to throw all their weight into their collars. A less common device for preventing the horse from boring or snatching at the bit is the gag. The gag consists of a rein that passes from the middle head through the rings of the bit to the driver's hand, so that when the horse drops his head the bit will stretch his mouth up to his eyes.

A horse can escape from the restraint of the plain snaffle to a certain extent by simply opening his mouth. For such horses the tight noseband will answer in nine cases out of ten; the tenth case might require Frank Gillard's noseband, called, after its inventor, the celebrated huntsman to the Belvoir hounds. This consists of a second noseband attached to the usual one by several small straps and lowered till it reaches the fleshy part of the nose just above the nostrils where it is buckled more or less tightly. I have recently seen a mare wearing a Gillard's noseband and pulling one side of a plough. The toamster told me that it was a pleasure to drive her in such a noseband but she was a brute without it.

My own favorite bit, especially for mouthy colts, is the half-moon snaffle with cheeks. My chief objection to jointed bits of any sort is their "nut-cracker" action. The half-moon snaffle is comfortable to the horse, especially if thick, and I find that a stiff mouth-piece gives me more power in turning my horse than a jointed one does. The cheeks prevent the bit from being drawn through the mouth, and, by pressing against the side of the muzzle, assist greatly in turning the horse.

The secret of controlling horses, either in saddle or harness, seems to be to get the head in the right place so as to balance him correctly. I am one of the many that cannot do this, but I know the genuine article when I see it in others. Much depends on bitting, but more depends on that quality called "hands." The man with "hands" can hold a horse with a thread, whereas the man without "hands" could not hold the same horse with a chain cable. Many riders go on pulling after the horse has given in, but this only causes the horse to pull again and pull all the harder. As soon as the horse bends his neck and "gives" to his rider, the rider should ease the pressure instantly and "give" to the horse. The same applies to drivers.

Perhaps the best device yet invented for controlling a hard puller is the Austrian martingale, but it cannot be used on a jointed bit, as the "nutcracker" action is brought much more into play with this device than with any other.

Wild Pigeons.

The news which came from Picton the other day, that a flock of wild pigeons had been seen in Prince Edward County, Ontario, must have been a surprise to bird-lovers, as that beautiful creature, once so plentiful, had been considered, like the buffalo, all but extinct. Early records of the pioneers make many references to the wild pigeons, and, indeed, they were so numerous as to be, at times, a pest and a menace.

Conditions in Ontario may be inferred from the book entitled "Sketches of Upper Canada, Domestic, Local and Characteristic," by John Howison, published in Edinburgh in 1825, from which the following is taken:

"Immense flocks of the passenger or wild pigeon frequent this (Long Point and the other parts of Upper Canada during spring and autumn, and myriads of them are killed by firearms or caught in nets by the inhabitants, for they fly so close and in such numbers that twenty or thirty may sometimes be brought down at a single shot. Yet the multitudes that are to be met with in Canada are trifling, indeed, when compared with those millions that visit the United States, where, according to Wilson, the ornithologist, they sometimes desolate and lay waste a tract of country forty or fifty miles long and five or six broad by making it their breeding place.

"While in the State of Ohio he saw a flock of these birds which extended, he judged, more than a mile in breadth and continued to pass over his head at the rate of one mile in a minute during four hours, thus making its whole length about 240 miles. According to his moderate estimate, this flock contained 2,230,272,000 pigeons, a number altogether inconceivable, and almost beyond belief were we not in possession of indisputable authority which proves that this conclusion was not exaggerated."

An Eskimo Caribou Hunt.

In caribou hunting, nearly all Eskimos who hunt with bow and arrow use inuksuit, or "likenesses of men." When a band of caribou is seen grazing quietly, says Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the famous explorer, the Eskimos hold a council of all present and determine upon an ambush toward which they will drive the game. The ambush is made at the angle of two long lines of "monuments," which are set up from fifty to a hundred and fifty yards apart, according to the character of the country. In rocky country they are made by putting two or three stones one on top of another to a height of one or two feet. At intervals of perhaps half a mile along the lines of stones men, women and even children are stationed; and there must be at least one person at each end of the lines. The hunters gradually close in, and the caribou enter the V-shaped area. Presently they see one of the persons who are standing in the line of stones. Apparently the caribou regards the little piles of stones as human beings and dangerous enemies, or possibly they think they are wolves. At any rate when the caribou are once scared and see that there are people in the line their imagination seems to turn all the little piles of stones into people. It seems absurd that two stones one on top of the other and only a foot high should be feared as much by the caribou as if they were actual persons, but such appears to be the fact.

A Few Helpful Hints for Youthful Exhibitors.

Bear the Ancestors In Mind—Pick Typy Animals—How to Feed and Handle Colts, Calves and Lambs —Boys Are Making Good as Exhibitors.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Calves that have been fed liberally and judiciously will develop as the factors which we call heredity determine. It will be all calf, but its perfection of form is determined by its parentage. Feed cannot make a square beef calf out of a three-cornered dairy calf. So to begin with the feeder should select the young calf largely on the individuality of the parents. Get a calf that will feed out to be as good or better than its ancestors—something that is worth while spending time and money on—and then take care of it. The breed score cards give clearly what is desired in breed type. These should be studied along with the animal that is being selected for exhibition. Calves should be halter broken when young, and handled gently that they may be quiet and docile at exhibition time. If in proper flesh to look well, ribs and back well covered, it is comparatively easy to complete the work of preparation. Prospective exhibits should be kept in the stable for several weeks previous to the fair, where they can be washed, groomed and blanketed in order that their handling qualities may reach a degree of mellowness that is very desirable in exhibition calves. When exhibiting before the judge see that your calf is standing on level ground, quietly, and with feet well placed so as to present a good appearance. Don't let the other exhibitors crowd too closely and hide your exhibit from view.

Handling the Colt.

The colt selected for competition at the fair should meet the requirements of the class in which it is planned to exhibit. It should also be typical of the breed that it represents and with the calf, the colt can only be what its ancestors make it. Colts may look very much alike when only a day old, but they certainly do not develop alike, even if the care and feed are the same. So get your start by selecting your exhibition prospect from good parentage—something that will stock if you can. Liberal feeding from the beginning on a comparatively narrow ration to develop as the bone and muscle possible should be the aim. Halter breaking and careful schooling to develop courage and tractability should be practiced and the colt trained to stand. The colt's feet should be trimmed frequently enough to keep them in proper shape. Teaching the colt to move attractively at the walk and trot to stand well and to permit handling of its feet is very essential in the general training of the animal. Such training is also a great aid on exhibition day. The colt that has had liberal treatment from birth and developed well, needs but little exhibition fitting. Good feeding will put a bloom on the colt that cannot be attained in any other way. Protection from the hot sun and flies, blanketing and grooming are material aids in developing a desirable coat condition, and should be practiced during the month previous to the exhibition. Ribbon and straw decorations while very attractive to the average good horseman do not carry very much weight with the high class judge, and are not likely to be of influence except in very close competition.

Shaping the Lamb for the Fair.

Lambs intended for exhibition at school or other fairs should, first of all have been born early enough in the spring to be well grown by exhibition time. The lambs' coats should be kept free of ticks and lice, burrs and dirt. During the season, a washing can be given, if necessary, at least two weeks previous to the show. Lambs that are kept up and fed in covered pens will show a better fleece than if they had been running out on pasture up to the last minute. The fleece should be neatly trimmed one week or more after washing, if washing is practiced, and care taken to keep the fleece free of chaff and dust until the exhibition is over. In feeding for exhibition, carrying a fairly narrow ration and sought in order to keep up the lamb's appetite, using oats, corn wheat, bran, cracked peas, barley meal and oil cake may be given for the grain part of the ration and good alfalfa or red clover hay, and swede turnips as roughage. These fed in mixed to give a ration with a nutritive ratio of 1 to 6 or 1 to 7 will take care of the growth demands and fatten the lambs. Should it be desired to feed the lambs while running on pasture, the grain ration given can be used. The lambs should be handled sufficiently to make them tame enough to stand well when being exhibited. If more than one lamb is called for in a class, all individuals should be uniform in size, type, condition of flesh and body fleshing.

Getting the Pig Ready.

Pigs presented for exhibition at school or other fairs should first of all be of the type and breed desired for the class in which it is planned to exhibit them. The exhibit should be clean. This condition is best accomplished by an occasional warm water, soap and the scrubbing brush. The crate or pen should be well bedded with straw or shavings to make the animals comfortable and attractive. It should also be free from nails, old wire, broken bottles or any other material likely to injure the exhibit.—C. Stevenson, Sec., Dept. of Agriculture, Toronto.

It takes no more to feed a cow that tests high in butter-fat and she may be returning you double in profit.

Smoking for Health.

People in England smoked long before tobacco was introduced.

Pipes have been found embedded in the mortar of churches built much earlier than 1565, when Sir John Hawkins brought over the first sample of the weed which everyone smokes nowadays. It is probable that our ancestors smoked herbs, not for pleasure but for medicinal purposes.

It is known that coltsfoot was inhaled for asthma, though it is not certain whether the pipe was used. One of the earliest smoking "mixtures" was a very small quantity of the Virginian weed blended with horehound, vervain, and foolsfoot.

Tried for Years to Find Relief

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" GAVE IT

Chronic Constipation or insufficient action of the bowels, is one of the great causes of disease. Some authorities even claim that Constipation cannot be permanently corrected. This is a great mistake, because here is the proof that constipation can be cured and the bowels made to act regularly and naturally.

YARMOUTH, N.S.

"For years, I was troubled with Constipation, and had to take laxatives and purgatives all the time. If I neglected to take these, the bowels would refuse to do their work.

About two years ago, a friend advised me to try "Fruit-a-tives", which I did. The first box helped me so much that I obtained further supplies of the remedy and continued the treatment. After using about eight boxes, my bowels were able to perform their particular function without aid.

The relief in my case has been lasting, as up to date, I have never had any further trouble. I can recommend "Fruit-a-tives" to all suffering as I did and I am sure they will derive equal benefit".

TALKED IN FIRELIGHT.

They Entertained a Famous Poet Unawares.

"Your cook-fire made such a contented-looking picture against the dark, you don't mind if I sit and watch you two?"

This remark from a "tall, broad-shouldered, big-nosed, open-countenanced-man, who lifted one moccasin-shod foot out of his canoe and then the other, deliberately, not ungracefully, is quoted by C. Morris Longstreth in his new book, "The Laurentians." The author and a friend were camping in the Laurentian wilderness in northern Quebec when the unexpected visitor agreed. From his reticence he might have been a shanty-man, but the firelight disclosed a face of sensibility as well as strength; from his hair of a long and errant shagginess, he might have been poet or musician; but then his modesty! We should have thought him fifty but for a certain ah! mannerism that goes with youth. So awled there along the stand in an unperturbed silence, smoking, he joined us to the brink of interrogation."

The trio talked in the firelight, first of the mountains, now of mosquitoes, then of the stars, and, by and by, reached poetry. "I have a cousin down in New Brunswick you may have heard of, Charles G. D. Roberts," said the stranger. "Now there's a poet for you—a man who is at his best on a big theme in nature, and worth quoting at length like this, if one has the memory." Pressed further, he quoted the names of several Canadian poets of note, and then one of the listeners said: "You left one name from the list. Isn't Bliss Carman a Canadian?"

"Yes, but one of the wanderers, the wind, and little leaves, turning. It didn't realize he was a Canadian, though everybody knows his name," said the listener.

"His name, perhaps," said the other, dryly, "but his work hardly; that is what counts. I can scarcely recall a dozen poems by him, and I am interested in poetry."

"I'd give a hand to meet that man Carman," said one of the listeners.

"He is not much to meet," said the stranger. "A big and awkward old bachelor, who confines his conversation to the business of the day. Know him, or did when we were younger, and still occasionally get glimpses of him. He is a whimsical pondering sort of giant. New Brunswick has never forced a giant loaf-bread in the States. He was starting off for Montreal the other day on a lecture tour and vowing when he got it over that he'd never see again where he couldn't go in moccasins."

They talked for hours, and once the stranger said he was trying to remember something, and wrote for fifteen minutes on envelopes and things from every pocket. When he had done he picked up some letter paper, also scribbled over, and found on the letter-head:

BLISS CARMAN,
New Canaan,

Why the Salmon Is Pink.

Men of science were long puzzled to know why the various species of trout have red or pink flesh. Now they believe that the color comes from the food that they eat. All of the salmon family are particularly fond of shellfish; and trout eagerly feed on fresh-water shrimp. It is well known that when lobsters, prawns and shrimps are cooked their flesh turns pink; similarly the process of digestion turns shellfish pink. When a shrimp is found in the stomach of a salmon or a trout the gastric juices of the fish have turned it almost as red or pink as if it had been boiled. Therefore, even if we had no definite proof, we might believe that the color of the flesh of salmon and trout results from the considerable quantities of various small shellfish that the fishes eat.

Australian Flowers.

A wreath of Australian flowers, recently placed on the Cenotaph in Whitehall, by the Australian Prime Minister, made the long journey in a block of ice. The flowers were quite fresh for the ceremony.

ANOTHER BIG STEP IN RADIO

Radio broadcasting, as everybody knows, is made possible by the use of the wonder-working vacuum tube. When Bell Telephone engineers in 1915 achieved the first transmission of speech across the Atlantic they used no less than 300 of these vacuum tubes to generate the necessary high frequency power. Later developments brought about the use of tubes supplying 250 watts.

Now comes an epoch-marking advance in vacuum tubes! Bell engineers have just perfected a water-cooled tube capable of supplying 100,000 watts—200 times the power used for the ordinary broadcasting station.

This tube was made possible by the perfecting of a method of sealing copper to glass in such a manner as to overcome cracking when the tube gets hot.

The picture shows W. G. Housekeeper, the Bell engineer who perfected this new sealing process, with one of the big tubes in his hands. Note also the contrast between the new 100,000 watt tube and the little tube in use in the average receiving set!

This new tube marks a great advance, it is thought, in the progress of radio! It makes available high frequency power in units so large that only a very few such tubes would be necessary to operate even the largest radio stations, with all the flexibility of the ordinary vacuum tube.

HATS FOR STREET

Broad-Brimmed Headgear That Shades Eyes Holds Favor.

Many Models Are Colorful, Showing Liberal Quantities of Flowers and Ribbon Roses.

Because the summer suns are high and hot, there is a great tendency just now to wear broad-brimmed hats that shade the eyes. And while a great many of them are as colorful as they can be, showing quantities of flowers and ribbon roses, many others have that chaste, simple and plain look about them which scorns trimming of any sort. In other words, you can pay your money and take your choice. You can even wear a little one, if you wish, and if the character of your dress allows it. But, as a rule, the simplicity of the informal summer dresses rather demands the floppy and artistic look of a broad-brimmed hat.

Just now there is a general preference for straw hats—those that are woven so that they show the light through their meshes and still form a shade for the eyes. There are others made of those little overlapping rows of horsehair braid and lined with filmy bits of chiffon which have a way of looking about as cool as anything.

Hats That Shade the Eyes.

Some with embroidered corners, others with drawnwork as a trim. Madeira embroidery finds a prominent place also.

Applique material in contrasting color used with embroidery of various types is favored. Corners are frequently treated this way, but sometimes the decoration is set quite far up.

A solid color model with self-color embroidery in the wide hem is attractive.

Gingham is represented with hand-embroidered motifs in the corners. In all-white the favored trimming is fine real lace, as filet, valenciennes and venice.

TO CLEAN THE CLOTH COAT

Boiling Hot Soapsuds, With Aid of Stiff, Clean Brush, Will Do the Trick.

Rub soap upon the cuffs and collar. Dip them into boiling hot soapsuds and scrub with a stiff, clean brush. Treat the grease and dirt spots in the same way. Change the soapsuds for clean, as they get dirty. Wet and brush the whole coat, using a part of the cloth, with fresh soapsuds. When you have got rid of all the spots, add a little alcohol to the water. Stretch the sleeves, pocket holes, cuffs and collar into shape—folding the sleeves as if they had been ironed —also the collar.

Lay the coat on a clean cloth, spread on a table or floor and let it get perfectly dry in the sunlight, turning it over constantly, without disturbing the folds. It will look like a new coat.

Will Test Hogs.

In order to give breeders of the most desirable bacon-producing strains of the different breeds of swine the same advantages that the Record of Performance test gives to the dairy cattle man, a Bacon Hog Section Test will soon be instituted by the Dominion Live Stock Branch at Ottawa. At the present time preliminary tests are being carried out at Ottawa and Charlottetown, P.E.I. These tests will be used as a basis for defining definitely a test that will be available to all breeders of pure-bred swine.

At Ottawa 12 pairs of pure-bred market type hogs, representing the Yorkshire, Berkshire and Tamworth breeds, are being finished up to a weight of 220 pounds (at the pens). An accurate record of feed and cost of production is being kept. Later a carcass test will be carried out, to see how well the finished animals conform to Wiltshire side requirements.

Breeders whose hogs come up to the standard of economy of production that is set for the test, will be awarded a certificate testifying to this. It is hoped by this means to eliminate the undesirable types of pure-breds that are being sold under the name and reputation of their breed. The good strains, on the other hand, will be encouraged. A certificate will give a premium to the breeder of the desired bacon type. Work of a similar nature in Denmark carried on through pure-breeding centres, has done much to get the uniformity of bacon types for which that country is noted, and which has given the enviable reputation on the British market.

Winter Finishing Will Pay.

The winter finishing of cattle provides a good outlet for coarse grains and rough feed, crops that promise to be of good value during the present year states the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Unfinished cattle markets during the next three months will sell at the low level price period of the year.

Spring markets for finished stock of almost any weights move steadily upward. At present buying prices stockers and feeders represent an excellent investment, and the retention of unfinished cattle of proper type and quality is a good business.

The productive capacity of the land depends on the proportion of the crop returned as manure, hence winter finishing cattle promotes economical production as well as providing a profitable medium through which to market surplus coarse grains and roughages.

SOME NEW KERCHIEF IDEAS

Black and White Favorite Colors for Summer Use; All-White Models Numerous.

The use of black and white for a smart summer handkerchief is noticeable everywhere. Also the drawn-thread style with hand embroidery, which has already held a place through two seasons, is still prominently displayed. Then there are a number of printed effects in colors, from the simple stripes and conventional borders to elaborate floral and figured designs.

The small handkerchief both in white and solid color, with brilliant little cross-stitch design in the corner and an edging band done with a crochet picot, is a novelty.

All-white models are numerous,

FIGHTING GOPHERS.

How the Work Is Done on Western Farms.

The neighborhood party idea has been successfully applied to gopher elimination.

The eradication of pocket gophers is very difficult unless all the farms in a district are cleaned up in one campaign. A district two or three miles long is selected by the county agent, and farmers in this district are invited to a gopher poisoning party. A full attendance is usually secured.

The morning session is given to a demonstration in cutting the bait and applying the poison. Sufficient bait is prepared to supply the party for the day. In the afternoon, the party is divided into pairs, one person carrying the bait and distributing it in the runways, while the other person uses a prod to locate and open the runways. The county agent or specialist spends some time with each pair, giving instructions. All the infested area represented by the farmers attending the "party" is covered and poison bait applied. In many cases a second day is required to complete the work, but all members of the party invariably stay with the job until it is finished.

Facts About Freckles.

Freckles come either from exposure to sun or wind. Sun freckles are pretty, and wear off soon. Wind freckles are ugly, and stick.

Lemon juice is the only protection against wind freckles. It will also keep the dust out of the pores, and prevent dull complexion.

Although not every girl cares to wear one, yet a veil, properly worn, is very becoming. Whatever the material, the color should be blue. It is not necessary for it to be thick; light, gauzy stuff will be sufficient protection.

If, despite all precautions, freckles make their appearance, they can generally be removed by the application of lemon juice, in which a small quantity of powdered borax and sifted sugar has been dissolved. Rub in well night and morning.

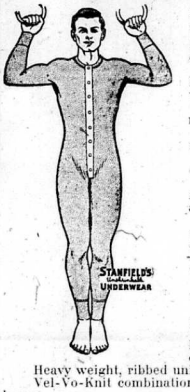
MEN'S WINTER UNDERWEAR



When we buy an article which is A No. 1, as a rule we stick to this particular line until we find something better, and then we change.

In Stanfield's Underwear we have yet to find a garment that will compare with it.

As with Stanfield's, so with many other lines.

Our winter stock is in, and ready for your inspection.

We will list below a few of our many lines :

Men's Tiger Brand Fleece, natural shade only. Two-piece and combinations.

Stanfield's Red Label, all wool, unshrinkable. Two-piece and combinations.

Stanfield's Blue Label, all wool unshrinkable.

Stanfield's Green Label, union, unshrinkable.

Admiral, naturalwool, two-piece and combinations.

Wolsey combinations, the best. Stanfield's elastic ribbed combination, in two weights.

Heavy weight, ribbed union combinations.

Vel-Yo-Knit combinations, in two weights, medium and heavy.

FOR THE BOYS

Tiger Brand, fleece, natural shade, much superior to any other garment.

Penman's Preferred, natural, two-piece and combination-

Child's adjustable combinations.

Our values are unexcelled. Our prices are right.

MEN'S FALL AND WINTER HOSIERY

For the past few days we have been very busy getting our Men's Hosiery in stock for fall and winter buying. Shipments have been coming in from both Canadian and English houses, and we rather pride ourselves on the many lines and splendid values which we are offering for the fall and winter trade.

We quote a few of the numbers :

Men's Worsted Hose, colors Black, Heather mixtures, and Lovalt. This line has been marked at a very special price—50c. pair.
